Skills Revolution: The Skills Driven Future of Talent Development

Presented by: Joey Spivey, Wellabe

Don't miss this exhilarating journey into the heart of the Skills Revolution! In this session, we'll start pulling at the threads of the future of work, where skills reign supreme. Discover the pivotal role of skills inventories, taxonomies, and ontologies in sculpting a resilient workforce. We'll explore the impact of a skills-based philosophy on L&D and other organizational programs like succession planning, recruitment, and employee engagement. We'll also scratch the surface of how skills management intertwines with the concept of an "internal gig economy" to provide a more agile model of talent deployment and development in your company. This interactive discussion will equip you with practical strategies to harness the power of skills, boost employee potential, and future-proof your organization. Don't miss this opportunity to lead your talent development efforts into the exciting, ever-evolving world of skills!

Objectives

- Build their own skills taxonomy
- Curate their own skills inventory
- Apply skills management to hiring, succession planning, emerging leaders development, and other existing L&D programs
- Implement meaningful gig work systems in their organizations
